Pleasanton politicians— not talking

Lot of 'maybes' for two seats on city council

PLEASANTON — Not one person is yet willing to throw his or her hat into the upcoming city council election ring — but quite a few will hesitantly say they are "considering" that step.

Two seats will open March 7 when the terms of Mayor Bob Philcox and Vice-Mayor Joyce LeClaire expire. And any Pleasanton adult who wants to attend at least six meetings a week for $100 a month can enter the race.

Neither LeClaire nor Philcox have committed themselves to running for re-election. Both are still considering it, but Philcox says he isn't sure if the good points outweigh the drawbacks.

"One of the issues I ran on (four years ago) was solving sewer problems. If I could get that problem solved before elections I might be able to relax and not run," he told The Times. LeClaire said she is still weighing the tremendous work load against "personal considerations" in her life. She also hopes for some public response regarding her candidacy before making her decision.

The planning commission traditionally has been a jumping off spot for future council members. At least three of the five commissioners left the door open for their candidacy when questioned by The Times.

"Funny you should ask me that question," said commissioner Gregg Doherty. "Several other people have asked me the same thing, but no comment."

Commissioner Bob Butler told The Times he is "thinking about it," but added he doesn't know when he'll make up his mind.

Although commissioner Bill Jamieson said he is not considering running at this time, he also said he hasn't totally ruled out the possibility.

After the two vacant seats are filled for another four-year term, council members will appoint a mayor and vice-mayor from their ranks. City staff plans to meet Friday to schedule the election calendar and that action is expected to turn some of those "considerations" into definite answers.

Two paths to argue

Vallecitos is down pending 20-day appeal

Times Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — General Electric has 20 days to appeal the shutdown of its Vallecitos nuclear reactor but federal officials said yesterday the shutdown poses no threat to the pharmaceutical industry.

Representatives from pharmaceutical companies nationwide crowded a meeting room here yesterday to hear that assessment from the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Vallecitos is one of two major producers of radioactive pharmaceuticals. It also supplies some nuclear radioisotopes used in industry, in a process called radiography, use of rays to form images.

One of the two reactors at Vallecitos was shut down Oct. 27 discovery by the NRC after of an earthquake fault running closer to it than previously believed.

NRC's Richard Cunningham, told the meeting that if the industries follow through on contingency actions they have said they are planning, the shutdown will cause "no shortfall" of supply in the short term.

He said later in an interview that the long term looks equally unthreatening. They said there are other reactors capable of filling the gap, some in the U.S., one major one in Canada and others in Europe.

Until recent years, nearly all radioactive isotopes came from Oak Ridge, a facility in Tenessee run jointly by the U.S. and Union Carbide in an arrangement similar to the one at Lawrence Livermore Laboratory between the U.S. and the University of California. Recently however, the government has bowed to industry requests that it get out of the business and leave things to private enterprise.

The relatively relaxed attitude of the NRC to the shortage question Electric can be seen as a setback to General which cannot now argue that the reactor is vital to the nation's health.

Once tragic SR air picture takes a lighter turn

SAN RAMON — Four months ago Pat Boom may have looked at the skies cautiously, with a shudder.

Today she is likely to wave, maybe even smile.

She and her husband Fred started a petition drive to have the Federal Aviation Administration prohibit flight training and pilot qualification checks in San Ramon Valley after a mid-air collision there killed three persons in June.

About 500 signatures and several published reports later, Boom said the number of planes "buzzing" valley homes and performing "hot-shot" maneuvers has declined markedly.

"I've seen a tremendous change in this valley with the number of aircraft," said Boom.

She attributes the clearing skies to word circulating among pilots and aircraft schools about residents' concerns, and the ensuing publicity.

Although she said the petition drive probably will end before Christmas, the campaign's main purpose has already been served — public pressure has been exerted and matters seem to have improved.

Lou Fields, chief flight instructor with Wester Airmotive Co. Inc. at the Oakland International Airport agrees.

"All of us (pilots) are aware that there is criticism, and none of us wants that," he said.

"Every pilot who reads the newspaper is going to be extra cautious, and maybe even avoid the place," said Fields.

Boom is confident that safe flying is now the norm over the valley. And she's grateful that a bit of humor was injected into the controversey.

One of Boom's earliest targets, because of its "buzzing" antics, was an ancient, single-engine, military training plane.

About two weeks ago, the plane circled her Twin Creeks home.

She said she went outside, expecting some flashy stunt.

Instead, said Boom, the plane tilted its wings, "waggled his wings three times and flew off into the sunset." She laughed eomet him," she said.

The war between the pilots and the residents of San Ramon Valley could be nearing a truce.

Historic vote due on new sewer pact

DUBLIN — The Valley Community Services District will be taking a significant step toward sewage plant expansion if they conceptually approve a draft agreement with the City of Pleasanton.

VCSD directors will consider the agreement tonight at 7:30 in their general offices at 7051 Dublin Blvd., Dublin.

The consolidation of sewage treatment facilities between VCSD and Pleasanton involves phasing out Pleasanton's existing sewage treatment facility at Sunol.

An agreement to transfer Pleasanton's sewage treatment to VCSD would end more than 15 years of deliberations over the Sunol facility.

Problems connected with phase-out timing, capacity, controlling interests and expansion rights have to be mutually ironed out between the two entities before expansion can be undertaken, according to VCSD General Manager Paul Ryan.

Vintage Hills 'monster'

When the kids at Vintage Hills School in Pleasanton lined-up for their Halloween costume parade to Kottinger Park and back Monday, there was this "big kid" who drew all the "oohs" and "aahhs" — it was really their friend and teacher Keith Averell. Keith is a third grade teacher at Vintage Hills.

Candidates speak

The four candidates for the position open on the Pleasanton Joint School District board will be interviewed publicly tonight.

School board members will interview James Coffey, Karen Fritts, Raymond Goluba, and Ginger Moorefield starting at 7:30. Following interviews, each to last between 15 and 20 minutes, trustees will make their choice known. The successful candidate will serve through March of 1979.

Tonight's public session is scheduled for the district offices on Main Street.

Suspect due tomorrow

The man accused of the kidnap and rape of an 18-year-old Chabot College coed Oct. 26 is scheduled to return to Livermore tomorrow.

John R. Shook, 24, surrendered to police in Gallup, N.M., Friday morning after he called Livermore police and said he did not remember any details of the crimes he was accused of. He has been in custody in the Gallup jail awaiting extradition since then.

Pleasanton hearings over

Final tune-up for growth plan

PLEASANTON — After over a year's worth of planning, meetings and public hearings three things are clear — most people agree planning he city's growth is desirable, practically all concerned have different ideas on how to do it, citizens simply don't care.

The last of the city council's three public hearings on growth management was held this past Saturday with a record attendance of about 20 persons, according to Vice-Mayor Joyce LeClaire.

Time for public comment now over, council members intend to set up workshops and possibly revise parts of the much debated plan next week. No estimate has been given regarding when members will finally vote to adopt or throw the plan out.

Two major points are at issue in "The Residential Allocation Program."

Many developers who, in 1972, were promised sewer connections as soon as the VCSD plant was expanded claim they should be exempt from the plan. And at least one, George Oakes of Hayward, intends to sue both Pleasanton and VCSD if he isn't allocated all the sewer connections promised him. Such a suit could entangle the program in court for years.

The points system underwhich connections would be allocated (the more points, the better chance of getting sewage treatment), is fiercely opposed by the Chamber of Commerce.

Chamber industrial development committee chairman Jack Bras claims that system will favor big developers over small ones, and will leave downtown without further development.

"I think it's an ungrounded fear," responds LeClaire. "As far as I'm concerned, I'd love to see (the program) stay as it is."

Mayor Bob Philcox has some revisions for the program in mind, but declined to discuss them until the council workshops.

Philcox did say that one homeowner Saturday expressed concern that the state, county and city would regulate individual property rights until there are no rights left to regulate.

Salaries

How teachers here stack up

Beginning, middle range and top salaries on the proposed Amador and Pleasanton school district salary schedules for 1977-78 are generally $600 higher than those on the proposed Livermore schedule for the present year.

The two other districts in the Valley, Murray and San Ramon, have yet to vote on tentative contract agreements for 1977-78. But, a check of Murray's certificated salary schedule for 1976-77 shows the ranges to be generally below those of Amador, a high school district, and Pleasanton, a K-8 district.

School boards in Amador, Pleasanton and Murray have yet to vote on tentative pacts. Murray teachers were to decide today when they would vote.

Livermore teachers and board have ratified their contract for 1977-78, actions still to be taken by their counterparts in San Ramon.

The proposed teacher salary schedules in the Pleasanton and Amador districts are near identical, as far as columns, steps and figures.

Beginning salary, for an AB Degree and no experience, is $10,545, while top salary (Step 20 in Column 6 — AB plus 75 units) is $22,464.

The equivalents on Livermore's proposed schedule are $9,966 and $20,286.

However, most teachers fall in the middle and upper ranges of the salary schedule.

Taking the fourth (of six) column, the range for Pleasanton and Amador teachers is $12,593 to $19,327. This calls for an AB Degree plus 45 units of study beyond the AB. These units are normally acquired through classes in the summer or through other regular school year university courses.

The same column for Livermore ranges from $11,901 to $18,996.

The same column for Murray (From the 1976-77 schedule) is $11,436 to $17,556.

Teachers move within a column , which can have between six and 12 steps, depending on years taught at that qualification level.

The salary levels quoted do not include additional monies for attaining a master's or doctorate. Livermore, Pleasanton and Amador grant $400 additional for master's degrees.

'Busnaped' children to testify in Chowchilla case

OAKLAND (AP) — Like the memory of a nightmare, a bizarre story of mass kidnapping comes back to haunt the children of Chowchilla this week when they take the witness stand to testify against their confessed kidnappers.

The three young men on trial — Fred Woods, 26; James Schoenfeld, 26, and Richard Schoenfeld, 24 — have pleaded guilty to one of this state's most extraordinary crimes, the kidnapping of 26 school children and their bus driver.

But the three defendants insist they are innocent of the more serious charge of kidnapping with bodily harm. If found guilty of that charge, they could be sentenced to life in prison without possibility of parole. On a simple kidnapping conviction, they would be eligible for parole in seven years.

It is an unusual case for a bodily harm charge — no one was shot or stabbed. But the prosecution will seek to prove a more subtle and terrifying form of injury — the effect that the memory of such an ordeal could have on the mind of a child.

On the hot afternoon of July 15, 1976, the nation was stunned by news that 26 children had vanished. A school bus carting kids home from summer school had been hijacked, emptied and left in a ditch.

The children and their driver, buried alive for 16 hours in a dirt - covered moving van, clawed their way out and were brought home, shivering and bewildered.

It appeared then that the children had not been seriously harmed. Bus driver Ed Ray and four of the youngsters had cuts and bruises.

But in subsequent months, there were after - effects. One child reportedly lost control of his bladder. Others were plagued by bad dreams and waking fears.

David Minier, the Madera County district attorney who is prosecuting the case after a change of venue, says he will emphasize "the terror, fear, heat and discomfort of confinement" as well as cuts and bruises sustained by Ray and the four children named in the specific counts against the defendants.

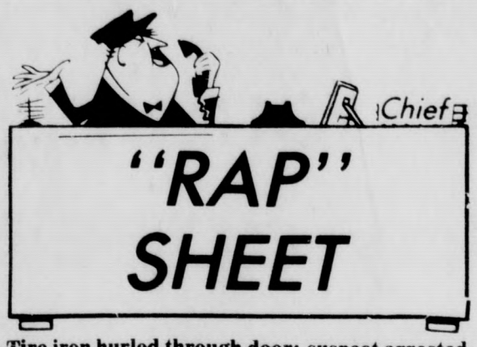
"We will probably also call a number of technical witnesses to say whether the physical conditions and confinement in the van constituted bodily harm," Minier said.

Superior Court Judge Leo Deegan ruled last month that no psychiatric testimony will be permitted. Parents of the four young victims had refused to subject their offspring to further psychiatric examination.

The trials are not likely to answer the key question of the case: Why were the children kidnapped? Evidence indicates the defendants dreamed up the kidnapping as a possible movie plot, then decided to make it a reality.

Lester Gendron, the Madera County public defender who represents Richard Schoenfeld, has said the reason seemed a mystery even to him.

"The plan was so loose and vague that you really couldn't determine what their goal was," he has said. "There was absolutely no way it could have worked."



Tire iron hurled through door; suspect arrested

LIVERMORE — A 19-year-old Dover Way resident was arrested Friday on suspicion of throwing a tire iron at another man that broke a glass door at Granada Bowl, police reported.

According to police, witnesses said Dean Stephen Paculba of 509 Dover Way allegedly challenged Graig Lewis Guymon of Railroad Avenue to a fight outside Granada Bowl about 11:20 p.m. Guymon kept walking towards the door when a tire iron smashed through a glass door at the bowling alleys' west entrance, police reported.

A Granada Bowl employe told police he saw the suspect flee the scene immediately after the glass broke and found him seated in a car nearby.

Paculba was booked on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon and malicious mischief.

Suspect arrested in tire iron assault case

DUBLIN — An 18-year-old Dublin man was arrested Friday after he allegedly threatened another man with a tire iron, sheriff's deputies reported.

According to reports, an 18-year-old Davona Drive resident told deputies that Raymond Ernest Mills Jr. had followed him around town yelling obscenities.

Danny Joe Williams told police that Mills pulled his car over on Bonniewood Lane and came after Williams with a tire iron. Both Williams and Mills ran inside homes on Bonniewood to call police.

A tire iron was found inside the residence Mills entered, deputies said. Mills was booked on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon.

San Ramon school candidates

Background, time on her side

With a background in school finance and business, and stating she would have the necessary time to devote to board business, Karen Stepper of Danville is making a concerted effort to win the position now open on the San Ramon Valley Unified School District Board of Trustees.

The election for the position vacated by Ronald Harris last July is Tuesday, Nov. 8. Vying for the spot, in addition to Mrs. Stepper, are Michael Wahlig, Don Smith and Joan Scott.

Mrs. Stepper, at 30, is the youngest of the four candidates. She most recently served on the Citizens Committee for Year-Round Schools and has attended school board meetings since February. She is also a member of Taxpayers Together and is working toward a master's in business administration at Cal State Hayward.

Though supporting the committee recommendation to place four schools in the year-round schools pilot project, Mrs. Stepper believes the district must utilize all available resources' to keep up with student housing requirements and improve the curriculum, and work-out a long-range facilities plan.

She feels the time afforded by not being committed to a full-time occupation will allow her to attend parent and faculty meetings and study legislation, thereby staying with the pulse of developments in the district.

Asked her opinion on collective bargaining, the former mathematics teacher at Presentation High School in San Jose, said she would "strive to heal the rift between teachers and board." Mrs. Stepper believes initiative and merit should have priority in teacher advancement.

Karen Stepper

She also opined that "Uniserv has the potential to over-balance the representation." Uniserv is the combined representational group for teachers in the San Ramon, Amador, Pleasanton and Murray districts. The group is served by one paid person, Jacques Bernier.

Regarding the possibility of overbuilding, Mrs. Stepper said the alternative to this is the year-round school pilot project ..." and use of portables as we can afford them."

A resident of the district since 1974, she worked with the budget, monthly and tax statements for three years in the early 1970s at Presentation. She taught at the girls school for four years until 1974.

Mrs. Stepper, in response to whether there is a need for southern section representation on the board, said "those who feel that should get behind the person they believe to be the most qualified candidate."

"My priority is improving the basics — reading, writing and arithmetic — and drawing on other districts' plans for a basic curriculum. I have children coming into the district and would like to see these beneficial changes made."

Supervisor pay hikes, last hurdle

OAKLAND — If any of the public opposes the Alameda County Board of Supervisors' pay increase, speak up at 11 a.m. today or forever hold your peace.

That's when the supervisors will vote on the second and final reading of the salary increase ordinance approved two weeks ago on a unanimous vote.

No opposition was expressed then. A representative from the Alameda County Taxpayers Association commented to supervisors at that meeting the 4 per cent annual pay increase appears in order.

The county staff produced statistics showing the Alameda County supervisors below the median of 10 urban California counties in supervisors' pay.

Supervisors also will give a second reading today to pay increases for the six elected county staff persons: sheriff, district attorney, assessor, treasurer - tax collector, county clerk - recorder, and auditor - controller.

The ordinance approves a 4 per cent annual pay hike for them, or 65 per cent of the annual cost of living increase, whichever is higher. The same escalator option is built into the supervisors' pay.

The elected officials' increase commences, Jan. 1, 1979. They get a 5 per cent increase in 1978 by action of a previous board of supervisors.

Drug industry will survive

However, NRC officials said Monday that GE still has two courses open to it.

One is to demonstrate that the geological formations found in the study are not, after all, the result of earthquakes but of landslides. The other is to demonstrate that the reactor is small enough and safe enough that radiation would not leak in an earthquake.

GE representatives raised the first possibility in a meeting with NRC staffers here Friday. In another meeting Saturday they argued the second point.

The shutdown still leaves one reactor operating at Vallecitos. Vic Stello, NRC director of reactor operations, said Monday that reactor is deemed too small to be worrisome in the event of an earthquake.

He said a smaller system has fewer surrounding parts and needs only one specific portion to be left intact for safety to be assured.

Stello also said the next move is GE's. The company has 20 days from the date of the shutdown to present an argument in favor of a new start-up. The reactor remains shutdown for 20 days, Stello's office said and cannot be reopened without a public hearing.

A hearing can be requested by GE or anyone else, Stello said. If one is called it is expected to be held near the site.

Any decision made by the NRC board now considering the case may be appealed within the NRC. Only after that appeal would the case go to the five member commissioy be appealed within the NRC. Only after that appeal would the case go to the f at the top of the NRC and only after that would the case go the courts.

If the reactor is permanently shut down, it would be the second in California this year other was an old, low power Humboldt reactor, which was also sacrificed to concerns about earthquakes.

Education is the key

Battling the common killer — cancer

If you had the chance to save a life, would you do it? And suppose that life might be of someone you know and love, the life of your best friend or your neighbor . Would you make the effort?

The opportunity is being offered to women of the Valley to do just that. The American Cancer Society is inviting volunteers to join a grassroots campaign to save lives by educating women about breast self-examination, the single most effective way of saving women's lives from breast cancer, which kills 35,000 women per year in the United States.

Women who wish to be part of this effort will be trained in Oakland at the Breast Screening Center near Merritt Hospital.

Each woman volunteer will then come back to the community, and through coffee clatches or meetings, pass the knowledge along to relatives, neighbors, friends and acquaintances.

In this way, the Cancer Society intends to reach every woman with the message that may save her life, since almost one in 13 women in the United States now will get breast cancer in her lifetime.

Geneva Humphrey of Livermore is the new president of the Cancer Society's Alameda County unit. She is leading the fight to save lives from cancer through education.

In addition to the breast screening training, Geneva has announced that the "Great American Smoke-Out" will go nation-wide this year. It was a highly successful anti-smoking campaign in California last year.

The media will be saturated for a week in November with anti-smoking information. Great American Smoke-out Day is Nov. 17, when the nation will be asked to not smoke, to not buy cigarettes, and to quit smoking permanently.

As part of the educational program against smoking and lung cancer, there will be smoking-cessation clinics, and pledge cards for smokers to sign, who wish to quit. The Cancer Society will do a follow-up to see if the pledgees were able to quit for good.

Geneva, a mother of four, joined the effort against the killing and crippling disease after losing her sister to cancer. She began as a door to door canvasser for contributions 15 years ago, and has served in the society's education programs and as Livermore-Amador Valley branch Public Education Chairman.

Educating the public about cancer is seen as highly important to Geneva. Much fear surrounds the disease, says Geneva. Dispelling the fear with positive action and information is one of the Cancer Society's most effective weapons because, she says, caught in time, cancer can be cured.

"We want to set people to thinking about themselves and their bodies," says Geneva. "We want them to stop smoking, and we want women to get a pap smear every year to prevent cervical cancer."

She points out that cervical cancer, or cancer of the opening to the uterus is 90 per cent curable when caught in time.

As part of the ongoing educational program the Cancer Society wants to inform the public of cancer's seven warning signals: A change in bowel or bladder habits, a sore that does not heal, unusual bleeding or discharge, thickening or lump in breast or elsewhere, indigestion or difficulty in swallowing, obvious change in wart or mole, or nagging cough or hoarseness. If you have a warning signal, see your doctor. It could save your life.

Men are urged to have a yearly check-up, and after forty, a proctoscopic examination.

The services extended to cancer patients and their families by the Cancer Society are many and varied. The Reach for Recovery program is for breast cancer patients, to help them to adjust and to become rehabilitated.

It can be an extremely upsetting event when any member of a family is found to have cancer. The Cancer Society offers support and counselling sessions for patients and their families.

"Unless you can possibly talk about it with others in the same predicament, and share ideas and feelings," says Geneva, "it is hard to come to grips with the disease."

Speech classes for those who have lost their larynx to cancer teach people to talk all over again. The classes are free.

The "Free Wheelers" are volunteers who give their time and driving ability to transport cancer patients to and from radiation therapy treatments.

Some patients must go to Stanford or the University Of California Medical Center in San Francisco. Others go to East Bay hospitals. Some must go daily, some once a week, but someone has to take them, and this service is performed by volunteers. Geneva Humphrey says that volunteers are always needed for this valuable service.

Of the "Free Wheelers" Geneva says, "They say they have profitted much more from getting to know the patient, taking him every day, than they could ever be reimbursed for."

She adds that "A lot of the drivers are older people who have the time and they like the feeling of being needed and helping other people."

A way that people may help the Cancer Society raise money for research and services is by contributing used clothing, furniture and brick-a-brack to the Cancer Society's thrift shop called "Just a Second," located in the 400 block of 14th St. in Oakland, between Broadway and Franklin.

Geneva Humphrey has worked for fifteen years as a volunteer in the American Cancer Society's efforts to defeat the disease. She invites others to join in the great effort.

"As soon as we get the volunteers to come forward, we'll take them in for training," she says, "We want to get to every end of the county."

Four nominees selected for Woman of the Year honor

Nancy Cotton

Sharon Kosch

Mattie Tucker

Dora Spence

Four finalists have been selected for Woman of the Year honors by the Pleasanton Jaycee Wives. The winner will be announced at a luncheon Saturday, Nov.5 at the Pleasanton Hotel.

Nancy Cotton, Sharon Kosch, Dora Spence and Mattie Tucker were chosen because they "epitomize service to the Pleasanton community in a variety of ways," said Deanna Scott, chairwoman of the event.

Cotton has been instramental in the formation of the Valley Volunteer Bureau where she is currently chairwoman of the board of directors.

She is also a member and past officer of the Livermore-Pleasanton branch of American University Women. The Community Presbyterian Club and the Christian Woman's Club have benefited from her assistance.

Sharon Kosch's energies have been directed at providing Pleasanton youth and adults broader opportunities in recreation, human services and professional advancement. She was elected as the first chairwoman of the city's Human Services Commission.

On the county level, Kosch is a member of the Health Care Concerns Committee and the Ad Hoc Growth Management Committee. With the American Association of University Women, she originated a legal rights of women community forum.

Mattie Tucker was one of the organizers of the Pleasanton First Baptist Church in 1950 and continues as an active member. She served on the committee which planned and built Pleasanton Gardens, a senior citzen's retirement village.

In addition to operating the Pleasanton Mobil Park, Tucker has volunteered to aid the Heart Association, the Senior Citizen's Choral group and the Pleasanton School district as a teacher's aide at Vintage Hills School.

Dora Spence has focused her efforts around Pleasanton's youth. She has participated in the Pleasanton Girls' Soccer Association, 4-H, Girl Scouts and the PTA. As president of PGSA Spence saw the membership grow from 500 to 1000.

For her contribution to 4-H, Spence was awarded the Silver Clover Award. She has also held posts on Valley View and Pleasanton schools PTA. Spence is a supporter of the Amador Valley Historical Society, assisting in the restoration of Old St. Raymonds Church and Murray School.

Reservations for the Nov. 5 luncheon, $6 per person, can be made by calling 462-4394 or 455-4943. Raffle tickets for a weekend for two in Monterey will be available at the luncheon. Proceeds from the raffle will go to Pleasanton Hotline.

AMONG CURRENT NEEDS:

- Nurses needed to give seniors citizens flu shots on Wednesday mornings for local health agency.
- Teacher aides needed to assist multi-handicapped children, ages 3-15, in Dublin classes.
- Volunteer Bureau needs a person to do phone follow-ups and record-keeping on community volunteers.
- Drivers needed to assist arthritic patients attending a local workshop, "Living With Arthritis" on Nov. 9.

WHAT TO CALL A WOMAN

The beginning of wisdom, goes an ancient Chinese proverb, is to call things by their right names. That applies to persons as well. And women specifically have become very sensitive as to what they are called, as they, and the rest of the world, become more conscious of who and what they are, and what their potential might be.

And recognizing the power that words wield over our lives, some women object to the word "she" because the word "he" is embodied in it. Some oppose the word "her" because "he" is in it, too. They protest the word "woman" because it has "man" in it.

There are those who do not wish to be referred to as "female" because "male" is the main part of it. They cannot allow anyone to call them a "person" because "son" is in there. And the greatest blow of all perhaps is that "human" is a word mainly composed of "man."

So what is a human woman person to do, especially if she doesn't wish to be referred to as a "lady," which to her might call up visions of gentle, passive folk, daintily sipping tea, an image she feels does not describe her: the dynamic, involved doer and mover? And she may slurp her tea, as well.

Should she allow others to call her a "girl?" What if she is no longer a girl? She may take this as an attempt to put her in a helpless position, that of a child.

Some women, on the other hand, might like to be called "girls," although they've left their grammar school days decades behind them. Some subscribe to the idea of George Savile, the English writer, that anyone who calls everything by it's right name, couldn't pass down the street without being knocked down as a common enemy.

At least, they would rather not be referred to someone's "old lady," although that often refers to a young woman in today's usage.

There are those who remonstrate against the title "Mrs" because it seems to denote a certain station in life which some consider secondary to that of the male partner in marriage. Also, it is mainly composed of the word "Mr."

"Miss" is considered unacceptable by feminists because it is felt that the married state should not be revealed in a woman's title, as men's titles do not immediately make that information available.

Most persons would simply like to be referred to with some respect ... I doubt if many women would like to be called "broad," referring to a portion of the anatomy, or "gal," which is a corruption of the already corrupt "girl."

In redefining woman in the society, it must be noted that some respect goes with the title "Mrs," and some people prefer it to "Ms." which they think gives the impression that they are a "swinger."

It was Elbert Hubbard who said that if you can't answer a man's argument, all is not lost; you can still call him vile names.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm a working mother with three children and a wonderful husband who also works a full week. We love our jobs and our family, but I've noticed that almost every weekend, we have a family fight. The terrible thing is that I believe many of them are my fault. It's not that I don't want to go back to work, which is what my husband claims. It's just that by Sunday night I feel everybody is getting in my hair and frankly, I'm tired of them and the endless work that has to be done for them. In fairness to them, should I quit my job and be a full-time mother and wife? — N.B.

DEAR N.B.: This is up to you, of course, but it might be quite destructive to your marrige. If you're unhappy, anxious and feel bored or unfilfilled, your family will be the first to know it. If you enjoy your job, and the pressure comes only on weekends, then I think there are better solutions than giving up the job.

One solution is to designate tasks for your husband and children so that all the weekend work doesn't fall on you. This doesn't have to be a burden on anyone. If you plan it right, it can actually be fun. For instance, you don't have to be totally responsible for all the meals if you involve the rest of the family.

A study by a Pennsylvania State University professor, Dr. Maximiliane Szinovaca, revealed the most working wives show stress on Monday. "Blue Monday" comes from anticipating another hard week, but this doesn't mean they don't like or enjoy their work. On Saturdays, they're down because they have to spend one day of the weekend doing household chores they couldn't do during the week. Allocate the work and ask others to share.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My wife and I have sacrificed a lot to send our son and daughter to college and we're very disappointed in the quality of their work. They tell us they're doing the best they can, but I find that hard to believe. They were both excellent students in high school and they're now dropped down to a mediocre level. Unfortunately, my son has fallen in love with a young woman we disapprove of. I believe this has affected his grades and his whole attitude about study and discipline. If I withdraw funds, my children may both quit. What can I do to push them toward better academic standards? — M.J.

DEAR M.J.: By the time a youngster reaches college age, about the only thing a parent can do is to talk to him or her as an adult, treat the young person with respect and be as supportive as possible.

I agree it would be foolish to withdraw funds. Besides, what have they done to deserve punishment? You certainly wouldn't want to punish your son for falling in love even though you don't approve of his choice.

Often, youngsters who were straight - A students in high school have difficulty getting along in college. For one thing, the competition is tougher and there is bound to be a period of adjustment in which the student tries to adjust to a totally new atmosphere.

A recent study by psychologist Douglas Heath who tracked 68 Haveford College students revealed that those who received good grades in college often were less effective as adults than the poorer students.

He doesn't suggest that failure in college will be a sign of future success, but he does feel that traditional academic measures tap too narrow a domain of skill and knowledge to be useful in determining future success and competence.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB–Please tell me what I can do next with my problems. I have diabetes and my blood sugar is 281 with 4 plus urine. My blood pressure is 190 over 120.

My doctor is giving me Tolinase, four tablets a day and for blood pressure two tablets a day of Hydrodiuril and two tablets of Aldomet. This medication is not helping and my doctor isn't very nice about it and has me very worried.

I watch my diet and I am not a salt eater. I have many problems and I worry about everything, especially about my urine. My mouth tastes somewhat like salt.

Please tell me what I could take that will help me. What could I take for that 4 plus urine sugar? I do not care for my doctor.

DEAR READER–I don't know your wieght or your age. If you are overweight it is very important that you lose weight both to lower your blood glucose levels and to lower your blood pressure.

I think you should go to another doctor. When a patient isn't happy with his or her doctor it is really better for all concerned to change doctors. You will probably do better with one you like.

No one can clear your urine of sugar, though, until your blood sugar (glucose) level comes down. Whenever the blood glucose level is over 170 there is usually some spilled into the urine. As a person gets older the kidneys change and the blood level may be higher without a positive urine test. That is one reason why blood tests are done at intervals.

Some diabetic specialists might wish to put you on insulin if you have associated kidney damage–which may be the case with your high blood pressure –particularly if you are not overweight. Insulin is commonly used if dietary management fails to result in adequately controlled levels of blood glucose.

DEAR DR. LAMB–I have heard that cholesterol does not become a problem no matter how much cholesterol-containing food is ingested,if sugar is omitted from the diet. If this is so, would you please explain the role of sugar in cholesterol build-up?

DEAR READER–No, it is not true at all. If you are eating too many calories of any kind and food containing cholesterol you may significantly increase your cholesterol level. This has been observed on some of the so-called magic reducing diets that limit carbohydrates but advocate foods rich in cholesterol and fat.

It is true, however, that if you do not restrict your calories from all sources enough to eliminate or prevent obesity you will not be very successful in lowering your cholesterol, even if you limit the foods that contain cholesterol in your diet.

Q. "HOW DOES A VACUUM CLEANER WORK?"
TOMMY GLOVER OCEANSIDE, CA
A. A SUCTION FAN IN THE VACUUM CLEANER CREATES AN INWARD RUSH OF AIR THAT CARRIES DIRT FROM THE FLOOR INTO THE CLEANER BAG
© 1977 by NEA Inc. T M Reg U S Pat Off
DICK Rogers
11/3

A vacuum cleaner is a machine for removing dust and dirt from carpets and other furnishings to help keep the home neat and clean. It does its work with a suction fan driven by an electric motor.

When the current is switched on, the fan makes a partial vacuum (a space where there is little air) within the cleaner, which is constantly being filled by the inrushing air. The cleaner gets its name from this.

At the same time, a stiff, revolving brush helps to loosen dirt in the carpet. The powerful inward rush of air created by the vacuum cleaner picks up dust and dirt as the air is drawn through the carpet material and carries it to a bag attached to the cleaner.

The bag permits the air to pass through it but not the dirt, which is trapped in the bag.

Vacuum cleaners were invented in 1899. Early vacuum cleaners were known as "pneumatic carpet renovators."

Take a hard look this coming year at any proposition involving new, novel or unique products or things. You could discover something that's a real winner.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Let your logic govern you today rather than your emotions, especially if dealing with one you're not fond of but who is pertinent to your immediate needs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your inclinations today are to be helpful to friends. Poking your nose into the wrong situations, however, could just be asking for trouble.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Everybody likes to come out ahead in a bargain, but don't do so today at the expense of one who has always treated you fairly. It could backfire.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If anyone can build a better mousetrap, you're the one. Use your ingenuity today to improve systems workwise.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Conditions look generally favorable for you today, with one exception: Don't jump into any venture where you don't have all the facts.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In business matters affecting the family you and your mate won't be operating on the same wave length. Today your ideas are sounder, but sell them tactfully.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be careful of what you say today in front of an acquaintance who is not overly fond of you. Careless remarks could later be twisted.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you're arranging a social activity today where the cost is to be divided equally, exclude a pal who always exits when the check arrives.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If would be hard to find one more charming than you today, when among friends, yet with your family you're far less tolerant.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your problem today won't be a lack of bright ideas. It will be your reluctance to depart from your usual way of doing things.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You are inclined to take everyone at face value today. This could prove costly if you're dealing with a crafty or unscrupulous type.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Normally you are a sharer, but today you might be tempted to use people to serve your interests. Problems could erupt playing this unfamilar role.

One of the standard swindle-type plays available to declarer is the super false-card or discard of a winner.

South looked over dummy and didn't like what he saw. Not that dummy bid badly, but rather that South expected to lose the first four tricks and there is no way to make 10 tricks if you have lost the first four.

West cashed the king and ace of spades to start the defense on what should have been the way to a small profit. When East dropped the queen on the second spade lead, South dropped the jack. West continued with the 10 and East chucked the three of diamonds.

West was still on lead and could not see that ace of diamonds in his partner's hand, so West shifted to a trump.

After this it was an easy matter for South to make his contract.

He simply played out all his trumps while holding all four clubs as dummy's last four cards. East could not hold both the ace of diamonds and his club stopper and the simple squeeze had crushed him.

Valley campus should be high on state's list

Board members of the South County Community College District will meet with a representative of the State Board of Governors for California Community Colleges Thursday to discuss the state's Master Plan for Community Colleges.

The board has recently reviewed plans for the district's educational program and facilities between now and 1981. Last week trustees held a special session to discuss a 17-page document outlining plans in those areas.

The paper contains a number of recommendations, including assigning first priority status to development of Valley Campus into an educationally and economically effective unit.

Other recommendations are to establish the present quality and integrity of the educational programs and services of Chabot College as the minimum standard acceptable; comply with state and federal statutes affecting program accessibility, especially as related to women and physically handicapped students.

In addition, the recommendations urge that the college and Valley Campus seek to serve new clientele, such as women and elder persons, maintain all district facilities in "as new" condition, replacing equipment on a regular schedule or as needed to meet changing educational requirements, and provide staff and facilities for management and support services at the Valley Campus.

Dr. Reed Buffington, president of Chabot, says day enrollment growth is more difficult to project than enrollment at the Hayward Campus because increases could range from 8 to 40 per cent, depending upon facilities and population growth. Another unknown is the impact of an educational center operated in the San Ramon Valley by Diablo Valley College.

Day enrollment in Hayward is expected to stabilize around the 1976-77 figure with small increases possible through 1980-81.

Asked what action might be taken to meet unexpected enrollment increases, Dr. Buffington indicated development of alternative delivery systems may be a partial answer. Such systems generally require little or no classroom space and may emphasize some form of independent learning. The systems include television courses, cable TV classes, courses at Bay Area Rapid Transit District stations, courses at public libraries, programs for elder citizens, and off-campus courses, excluding high schools. An average of 2,154 students enrolled in such classes each quarter last year.

"If students can come to us in exact numbers in fields that we have openings, we can enroll another 20 per cent," Dr. Buffington said. He added he was referring to such fields as engineering, microbiology, chemistry, engineering technology, and physics.

The most immediate needs, in terms of technical-vocational education, include automotive service, fashion merchandising, health and safety, welding, advertising, drafting, graphics print making, interior design, public relations, scientific data processing, and word processing.

Chabot honors familiar faces

Danville riding high in EBAL

Football fever in Danville is spreading these days, as San Ramon and Monte Vista High Schools head toward a possible showdown for the East Bay Athletic League title two weeks from now.

Whether or not that will become a reality depends largely upon their ability to get by this week's upset - minded foes.

The first - place Mustangs, 4-0-1, face Amador Valley on their own Danville field Friday night. The Dons, 3-2, still have slim hopes of an EBAL championship.

San Ramon, alone in second place at 4-1, plays host to up - and - down Granada, 2-3. Last year, the Wolves upset the Mats in the first game of the EBAL season, ultimately resulting in a Granada tie with Livermore for the championship instead of an outright title.

That, if anything, will be enough to get the Mats going. The Dons? Well, the hope of an EBAL title is a strong enough stimulant itself. If they beat MV and San Ramon loses to Granada, the Dons, as well as Dublin (3-2), have EBAL title hopes rekindled.

Livermore, 3-1-1, has probably the best chance of any Valley team of winning the championship, despite losing a chance to move into first place when they tied Monte Vista 14-14 Friday night.

In doing so, The Mustangs and Cowboys made the picture a lot clearer. After this weekend's games, the status of the Monte Vista - San Ramon showdown will be measurable.

The most startling observation to make now is this: if both Monte Vista and San Ramon pull out wins Friday, there will be no Valley team in contention for the outright championship going into the final week.

Assuming they win, Monte Vista will head into the game 5-0-1 and San Ramon will be 5-1. The closest Livermore can come is 4-1-1, and only a tie in the MV - SR biggie will enable them to grab a piece of the title pie. What would then ensue is an elaborate tie-breaking procedure that hovered over the same situation in 1974 when a three - way title tie was possible, but never materialized.

In the other two EBAL contests, winless Foothill entertains Livermore while also - winless California hosts Dublin in a Saturday fternoon kickoff in San Ramon. By then, the Gaels will know if they're still in the title race.

In the East Bay Prep Writer's Association football polls released yesterday, both first - place teams kept their number one positions following decisive wins.

In the 4-A poll, Kennedy of Richmond outpointed powerful Mission San Jose 78-74, receiving six first - place votes to MSJ's two. The Eagles defeated defending North Coast champion Pinole Valley 21-7, while the Warriors trounced previously undefeated American 39-7.

Antioch High remained a perfect 7-0 on the year with a 12-3 win over Concord.

Pittsburg (6-1) was rated fourth, while Monte Vista pulled out fifth place with its overall 6-1-1 record.

American stayed sixth despite the loss to MSJ, Livermore was seventh at 5-2-1, El Cerrito finished eighth at 6-2, San Ramon's 6-2 mark was good for ninth, while Clayton Valley pulled up tenth at 2-2.

Dublin High remained an honorable mention at 5-3.

In the 2A poll, Encinal received all eight first - place votes to keep the top spot again.

A Pac of brawlers

On Sports

SAN FRANCISCO — Five cars are cruising down a four-lane freeway, some slightly ahead of the others, all more or less minding their manners.

Suddenly, the road narrows to two lanes. The front runners speed up, but the stragglers, not wishing to tailgate the rest of the trip, put the pedal to the metal, making a last ditch attempt to pass.

Tires screech. Fenders bend. Drivers curse. Maybe a few blows are struck. It happens somewhere everyday.

Saturday, it happened along Route 8. It could've been a pleasant weekend drive around a mild bend in the Pacific-8 Conference schedule for pace-setters Southern California and Washington. But, that hairy hippie from Berkeley and his suntanned little brother from Smogville were hogging the road.

Ralph DeLoach

Final scores: California 17, USC 14; UCLA 20, Washington 12.

The Trojans didn't appreciate the collision. The only teamamong the five Rose Bowl contenders to command its destiny, USC can clinch still another berth by whipping its final three opponents — but, lose to Stanford Saturday in Los Angeles and its all over.

That thought was not-so-gentle on the mind of Trojan tailback Charles White when he was hurled out of bounds by California defensive end Ralph DeLoach and cornerback Anthony Washington latein Saturday's game.

White, with 445 pounds of Bear atop him, was eager to get up. The Cal pair took its timme. White pushed Washington away, poking him in the face. Washinngton punched White.

"That was wrong...in front of their bench," deadpanned DeLoach, who quickly learned what a billiard ball feels like. The SC bench piled on Washington, White and another nearby Bear.

"I couldn't see 'em and all I could hear was 'whap-whap-whap,'" a photographer who had been a few feet from the melee said. DeLoach said he felt like he was inside a pinball machine.

A controversy is born.

After the game, Trojan coach John Robinson, the ex-Pleasanton resident, complained that Cal was a dirty team. The Bears laughed and called the kettle black.

"It was the most physical game I've played in," said DeLoach. "I guess everyone wanted to be a part of that, even the guys in white shirts sitting on the bench — it was an unfortunate thing."

Robinson, though he made no specific analogies, fears the college game is going the way of the National Football League and the fifteen-yard, double indemnity lawsuit/penalty. Stanford head coach Bill Walsh, USC's next opponent, agreed that something was amiss at Memorial Stadium Saturday.

"The pros hae fines and suspensions, we don't. It comes to a point when some one has to expound on the situation," said Robinson yesterday. It was left to Walsh, he of the exquisite timing and dry wit, to expound.

"I hope the officials in our game with Southern Cal will participate in the game," said Walsh, without a trace of a smile. Under pressure, he added, "I think some unfortunate things happened at Berkeley. I'm not going to name some teams or some schools — I would hope that these things don't happen in any college stadium."

DeLoach espoused the defensive players' party line. Intimidation is part of the game, he said.

"We're going to try to get away with some thing and its up to the refs to call them," said the 6-5, 255-pounder. "The officials get paid to participate in the game, they're there to control the so-called 'cheap shots.'"

Robinson bemoaned the fact his team was forced to play both Notre Dame and Calwile both were at an emotional peak. DeLoach admitted the Bears were high for the game, both because of its importance to Cal's meager Rose Bowl hopes and because of its meaning as the first Joe Roth Memorial Game, honoring the late Cal quarterback.

Cal coach Mike White, who said, "I don't have anything to say about any of this, I've got Washington (this week's foe) to worry about," did mellow the talk of emotions.

"There weren't," said the businesslike White, "a bunch of guys drooling in the locker room, trying to break down the door and get the game started."

DeLoach wondered"if USC would be making those comments if they'd won. I haven't heard them say anything negative about a team they've beaten.

"I saw aggressive behavior on both sides of the ball."

Don James, coach of the Huskies — who play Cal Saturdayin what may be a second consecutive Memorial Stadium sellout, isolated himself from the issue.

"I didn't see any fights in the game film we got," he said lightheartedly. Sounding very much like White, he added, "I don't want to get drawn into any controversy — I've got enough troubles of my own up here.

"We're not going to bring any boxing gloves."

Chiefs fire Wiggin

Former 49er assistant coach and now former Kansas City head coach Paul Wiggin talks to reporters in his office after Chief owner Lamar Hunt announced his surprise firing yesterday. Wiggin, whose Chiefs fell to 1-6 after losing to Cleveland, Sunday, 44-7. Wiggin claims he did a good job with the Chiefs and was not embarrased about the firing.

2-5 49ers have the fever

SAN FRANCISCO — Give them a two - game winning streak, and the San Francisco 49ers will have you believing it's going to last for nine games.

"Someone laughed at me the other day when I said the race is on," 49er head coach Ken Meyer said, followed by a brief silence. When one mentioned to Meyer the 49ers are only two games out of first place, he repeated, "I said, someone laughed at me the other day when I said the race is on."

No one's laughing now.

The race for first place in the National Football League is definittely on, but the teams are going backwards. Co-leaders Atlanta and Los Angeles both lost Sunday, so the 49ers' 2-5 record is amazingly two games away from the top, with seven left to play.

Ask any 49er. The playoffs are on the mind.

"A 9-5 record will make the playoffs," insisted defensive end Cedrick Hardman, whose Gold Rushing partner Cleveland Elam sacked Tampa Bay quarterback Jeb Blount four times out of the five they administered.

"It doesn't matter who gets the quarterback," said Hardman. "They called a very conservative game, and until the second half, they weren't giving us many good shots at him."

Elam, hiding away in his locker, refused to comment on either his sacks or the playoff possibilities of the 'Niners. "I think he's a very quiet, shy fellow," said Meyer.

"He's been hurting all week," the 49er coach continued on his stocky lineman. "But he played pretty well today. He's been having knee trouble."

Meyer does not relent a bit on the 49er playoff position. "Any time you have people left in your divvision to play, and you're not too far behind, then you've got a chance," he said.

Delvin Williams, who rushed for 90 yards on the day, including the 49ers' second score on a gaping 35 - yard run, stated the obvious: "I guess you could say every game from now on is a must - win. One loss and we're out."

Guard Steve Lawson was hoping Tampa Bay could give a little dose of the same scary medicine to the Rams next week. "I think Tampa Bay can win a game this year, and I hope it's next week against the Rams," he said. "You know, when you play this game, you've got to look at it from a very optimistic outlook."

Predicting a Tampa Bay victory over Los Angeles is being very optimistic.

"I hope they beat them," said quarterback Jim Plunkett, now a perfect 2 - for - 2 in game-calling. The Stanford graduate called the plays again Sunday.

"Defensively, they look good."

Gene Washington would have it no other way. He like the ball in the air.

"You really want to know?," he questioned after being asked why the 49ers are winning again. "We're throwing a lot more. Now that may be because he's calling the plays, I don't know."

For Tampa Bay to ever beat the Rams, 49er tight end Jim Obradovich believes some mending has to be done. "They're hurting on offense. If they go into LA and try and gamble a lot, throw a lot of screens, then they might win. You know McKay, he's a gambler."

"I'm always surprised at what John (McKay) does," Meyer stated in talking about the 0-21 Buccaneer coach. "He always comes up with the unexpected."

The unexpected almost gave 49ers fans their money's worth in the final quarter Sunday. After a successful on-sides kick with four minutes to go, Tampa Bay's offense stalled and faced a fourth - and - 40 after a pair of sacks.

The Buccaneers then pulled off a fake punt and Dave Green passed to Danny Reece for a 45 - yard gain. However, the 49ers held Tampa Bay on their own one - yard line to keep the point spread at Whether the hopes of the 49er faithful will come true or not depend largely upon next week's result.

San Francisco travels to Atlanta to play the Falcons. The remainder of their schedule takes them to New Orleans, then back home against Los Angeles and the Saints, back on the road to Minnesota, home against Dallas, and a season finale in Green Bay against the Packers.

Garrett passes mark

Oakland's victory over the Denver Broncos Sunday in Mile High Stadium was doubly satisfying to veteran running back Carl Garrett.

Garrett became the 17th player in NFL history to cross the 10,000 yard barrier in all-purpose rushing and receiving.

At game's end in the Colorado capital Garrett showed 10,009 yards for his pro career which began in 1969 with the Boston Patriots.

Carl has rushed for 4,079 yards, picked up another 1,903 by pass receptions, 487 on punt returns and 3,540 via kickoff returns.

Jimmy Brown, the former Cleveland Browns' running back, is at the top of the ladder with 15,459.

WithinGarrett's reach is No. 16 on the all-time yardage list, now held down by former Los Angeles Ram Jon Arnett, who gained 10,214.

In addition to Garrett, other active NFL players who have 10,000 yards plus include Buffalo's O.J. Simpson and the Washington Redskins' Charley Taylor.

A couple of names well-known to Bay Area grid fans, Ollie Matson and Hugh McElhenny also passed the coveted figure during their days in the pros.

Pat Toomay, the Raiders' defensive lineman who formerly played on Dallas Cowboy teams with Craig Morton, had good words for his quarterback buddy who has led Denver into the thick of the fight for AFC West honors.

Said Toomay, "I have a lot of respect for Craig as a quarterback and as a person. You're only as good as the players around you and now Morton is getting a new lease on life with the Broncos."

Toomay referred to Morton's troubles with the New York Giants prior to coming to the Colorado Rockies.

Running back Clarence Davis ran for 105 yards for Oakland Sunday against the highly-touted Denver Orange Crush defense.

Said the former Southern Cal star after the contest, "I know my abilities and that of the rest of the offensive line in front of me. We also understand each other's attitudes. So we work together as a team."

Davis refused to speculate on how the Broncos will fare down the stretch. He did add, "They have to say they've lost to Oakland and get ready for Pittsburgh this coming Sunday. They're just tied for the AFC lead now."

Quarterback Kenny (The Snake) Stabler of the Raiders agreed that the Denver fans with the bright Orange Crush shirts are a noisy bunch.

But he noted, "We sure appreciate our fans too. They're with us all the way."

Jazz offered Cox or pick

SAN ANTONIO — The Golden State Warriors arrived here today with 12 players. They may leave with 11.

National Basketball Association commissioner Larry O'Brien is giving the New Orleans Jazz a choice of compensation for E.C. Coleman signed as a free agent by the Warriors early in the exhibition season.

Golden State, having received only cash settlements, and a draft choice, after losing Jamaal Wilkes to Los Angeles and Gus Williams to Seattle will yield either rookie forward Wesley Cox and $40,000 or their own first round draft choice next season and $75,000.

"New Orleans has been instructed to make its election of either of the alternatives by notifying the league office no later than 5 p.m. Wednesday,November 2, " O'Brien said.

"I find that New Orleans suffered a loss as a result of Coleman's signing with Golden Stateand is entitled to be compensated for such loss. I find that either of the alternatives will make New Orleans whole for their loss of Coleman."

In making the decision, O'Brien rejected the Jazz' contention that only second-year Warrior forward Sonny Parker could meet New Orleans' immediate needs.

The Warriors are happier that it is indeed Cox and not Parker.

Sonny has been the ideal third forward as the Warriors have gotten off to a much faster start that expected. He has displayed enough offense to substitute for scoring leader Rick Barry and a touch of aggression that allows Coleman, an all-NBA defensive choice last season, to go to the bench without disastrous results.

Cox, on the other hand, came to camp out of shape due to an epic amount of hamstring pulls and has played little. Last season at Lousiville, Cox missed all but a handful of practiced because of the pain.

Tonight at the Hemisfair Arena, the Warriors, with or without Cox, meet the San Antonio Spurs, a team they had to reel off a 14-2 surge to beat at Oakland ten days ago.

That was the foul-plagued contest during which both Warrior centers, Clifford Ray and Robert Parish fouled out — as well as makeshift pivot Coleman.

The Spurs led, 113-108, with 3:07 to play. Then, whoosh, came a rush as overwhelming — if decidedly less lethal — that Generalissimo Santa Ana's raid on the Alamo.

The final score was 122-117. And, despite San Antonio's two-game sweep of the Warriors in Texas last year, Golden State head coach Al Attles is relatively confident as his team begins a four games-in-five nights tour of the South at 5:30 p.m. (PST, KNBR-680, radio).

"If you lose at home and go on the road, then the pressure's on you," said Attles, whose club has won its last seven regular season home games and 11 of its last 12, including last season's play-offs.

"We have to keep our defense going and get some lucky breaks," Attles concluded after hhs team had held off Philadelphia, 113-110, Saturday night in Oakland.

Rick Barry had 51 points and the 76ers' Julius Erving, a folk hero who has less success against the Warriors than other clubs, got 34, most from the outside.

"With Jamaal (Wilkes, the free agent who signed with Los Angeles) gone, I'm playing on the strong side more," Barry said. "Instead of being a passing forward as I was the last couple years, I'm more involved with the offense."

Life in the National Basketball Association is a constant riddle, as the supposedly mediocre Warriors 5-2 record would evidence. Barry would agree after his 22-for-38 shooting performance Saturday.

"You just never know," he said. "I felt very tired before the game; I didn't know how the old body'd react."

Attles has come under constant questioning for playing Barry as much as he has — 43 minutes Saturday — but shrugs off the potential criticism.

"Everybody makes a big deal out of Rick playing so much," he repeated. "If it was the 80th game, I'd be concerned, but not this early in the season."

Erving played enough — he didn't start since he's still recuperating from training camp knee surgery — to delight a new Coliseum Warrior record of 13,237 fans, many, as is often the case, attracted by the visiting folk hero.

Erving had 17, or half, of his points in that quarter as Philly chipped what was a seven-to-12 point Warrior lead most of the game, to a single hoop on three occassions.

Sixer coach Gene Shue, however, was not around to see the oh-so-close rally, having been banished from the court by short-fused referee Darrel Garretson during the last minute of the first half — without uttering a single curse word.

San Ramon also entered two teams in the Livermore Halloween Classic for Under-12 girls and boys' teams.

The Sr Hurricanes won one and lost two in boys' competition, losing 5-0 to the Livermore Clippers and 1-0 to the Walnut Creek Rangers. They topped the Fresno Eagles 2-0.

The Rookies, San Ramon's girls' entries, dropped three straight matches as they suffered numerous injuries.

They fell 4-0 and 3-0 to the Livermore Cat Claws and Canada's Tri-Wood Tigers. After leading 1-0 they lost a 3-1 heatbreaker to the Sunnyvale Falcons.

Goalies Michele Dulick and Enke and Diana Summer had a total of 44 saves in the three matches. Marina Xavier assisted Cheryle Wright on the Rookies' only tally.

Shari Andrade, Jantzen Moser, Debbie Maier, Tracey Wood and Susan Dowling starred on defense for the Rookies.

When a 'nuke' is old and gray

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission is studying whether it needs tougher rules to deal with worn-out nuclear power plants, facilities which would remain radioactive for more than 50,000 years after their shutdown.

The NRC and its predecessor, the Atomic Energy Commission, already have licensed 67 nuclear powerplants for commercial operations and have authorized construction of 77 more.

None of those powerplants has yet run through its useful lifetime, considered by the nuclear industry and the NRC to be around 40 years.

But when they do, their power - generating innards will be left dangerously radioactive from years of exposure to the energy bursts of splitting atoms.

And they will stay "hot" and hazardous for periods of time that make human generations seem like mere instants.

The nuclear industry's chief expert in this field testified last month that it would take 51,350 years for the carbon-14 radioactivity created in one kind of nuclear plant, gas-cooled, to decay "to acceptably low levels."

The expert, William J. Manion, a division president of Nuclear Energy Services, Inc., testified it would take between 234,000 and 505,000 years for the acceptable decay of nickel-59 radioactivity in water-cooled reactors, the kind already in general use.

It was Manion who directed a study published in November 1976 for the Atomic Industrial Forum, the nuclear industry trade organization, which estimated the costs of keeping these "hot" powerplants isolated from the public and the environment.

Basically, Manion's study identified two ways of doing this: either tear down the radioactive powerplant immediately, with careful and costly protection of workers and the public, or seal the plant for about a century, until the radioactivity has cooled off enough to make dismantling easier and cheaper.

In either case, the radioactive parts would eventually be buried someplace where it is hoped they would remain isolated and undisturbed for the rest of the 51,000 to 505,000 years their significant radioactivity would last.

Manion told a House subcommittee that "mothballing" a powerplant for 100 years — locking it up and posting 24-hour guards — and then burying its radioactive parts would cost up to $29.7 million.

"Entombing" the plant — sealing it with concrete and dispensing with around-the-clock guards — might cost around $23 million, including disposal of the radioactive parts after 100 years.

Immediate dismantling and burial of the radioactive parts would require a large initial investment, but eliminate the expenses of guarding and maintenance for a century, and would cost somewhere between $25 million and $38 million, Manion estimated.

Depending on the type of reactor, he said, it could cost an additional $7 million to $15 million to tear down an obsolete plant completely, including the portions which are not radioactive.

Manion's estimates did not consider the added cost of tying up money that could be used more productively for something else during the many years it would take to "decommission" a plant and bury it once and for all. Nor did it include the effects of inflation.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission, however, has used the industry's estimates to calculate "that decommissioning costs add very little probably less than one percent to the cost of generating electricity."

As a result of that opinion, the NRC has not been particularly concerned about requiring specific financial arrangements by the companies to guarantee eventual decommissioning.

Testifying before the same hearing as Manion, Clifford V. Smith Jr., director of the NRC Office of Nuclear Materials Safety and Safeguards, explained that the commission does not require specific plans or funds for future decommissioning when it authorizes a new nuclear powerplant.

The NRC, he said, "must be satisfied that feasible decommissioning alternatives do exist and that the applicant possesses or has the capability to privide the necessary funds to complete the task.

This means the company building the plan must show it can pay for disposing of the plant 40 years, or maybe 140 years, later.

Many corporations don't last that long. A U.S. manual lists some 98,000 New York - registered corporations whose stock has become worthless since 1938 and nearly 71,000 Delaware corporations whose stock has collapsed since 1930.

But the NRC is confident the nation's utilities will be around to clean up after themselves when the time comes.

If they are not, however, "the NRC can issue an order to take over a facility and it would be up to the federal government to be responsible for decommissioning the site," said Michael J. Bell, an NRC waste - disposal official, in an interview.

Bell said the NRC reviews the financial status of nuclear powerplant license holders every five years, making it unlikely a company could go bankrupt without warning.

But what if a five-year review showed signs of financial decay long before a powerplant had finished its useful life? How could the NRC guarantee a company's continued financial responsibility?

"That's one of the reasons the commission is going to have to reconsider its position," Bell said.

Another reason is the petition filed last July 5 by the Public Interest Research Group, a coalition of citizen consumer and environmental organizations.

This group asked NRC to start making rules requiring nuclear plant operators to put up the money in advance, to be held in escrow, as a guarantee of safe decommissioning in the future.

The companies would recover those funds in the rates they charge customers who receive electricity from the powerplant, rather than leaving it to a future generation to pay the bill after the plant is no longer working.

Reactors can remain radioactive up to 50,000 years later

Bakke protests useless justice claims

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Chief U.S. Supreme Court Justice Warren E. Burger, who encountered about 60 demonstrators urging him Saturday to overturn a California court decision on Allan Bakke, says a judge cannot be swayed by demonstrations.

Burger, an alumnus and former faculty member of the William Mitchell College of Law, talked about etiquette and decorum when he spoke at the dedication of the school's new campus in St. Paul.

American lawyers must learn to balance aggressive instincts with civilized behavior if they want to retain the confidence of the public, he said.

"Law students should be trained in ethical standards from the first day of law school," he said. "Too often the conduct of lawyers reminds you of the conduct in an alley or backroom brawl."

Brown's plan to alter unemployment benefit

SACRAMENTO — The Brown Administration plans to propose eliminating unemployment benefits for at least 78,000 jobless Californians while raising benefits for the rest, officials said today.

Those who would be dropped from the rolls include short-time, relatively high-paid workers in construction, motion pictures, food processing, agriculture and retail sales, said the state Employment Development Department.

The rest of the eligible unemployed — some 86 to 94 percent of those now drawing benefits — would get an increased weekly check, said department Director Martin Glick, Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s employment chief.

The major proposal would be a minimum period of employment - 10, 12 or 14 weeks. An applicant would have to earn at least $20 in each week to be eligible, and meet the overall earnings minimum. currently $750 a year.

A 10-week cutoff would disqualify 78,000 jobless persons, or about 6 per cent of those now drawing benefits, the department said. A 12-week cutoff would affect 130,000, and a 14-week cutoff would affect 182,000.

California now has 1,380,000 persons drawing jobless benefits, supported by employer taxes of $1.49 billion.

The proposal needs approval from the state legislature.

"We have a very liberal eligibility test, the third most liberal in the nation, but the fifth or sixth lowest benefit as a percentage of the average wage," Glick said in an interview.

So, what's new?

The Valley's baby population increased slightly during the last few weeks, local hospitals reported.

At Eden Hospital in Castro Valley, the Loren Gagers of Danville had a boy Oct. 14.

At John Muir Memorial Hospital in Walnut Creek, to Mary and David Agerter of San Ramon, a girl Oct. 14; Anne and Robert Gattis of Alamo, a boy Oct. 15; and to Holly and Wesley Nelson of San Ramon, a girl Oct. 16.

At Valley Memorial Hospital in Livermore, to Georgia and Carl Coleman of Livermore, a girl Oct. 14; Betty and Lauren Rosenquist of Livermore, a boy Oct. 14; Frances and Thomas Geisler of Livermore, a boy Oct. 16; and to De Ann and Jerry Hemming of Pleasanton, a boy Oct. 16.

To Gloria and Edward Shaffer of Livermore, a boy Oct. 17; Myra and Jeff Hogue of Pleasanton, a boy Oct. 19; Eujinia and Jorge Moreno of Livermore, a boy Oct. 20; and to Kristy and Robert Rodrigues of Livermore, a boy Oct. 20.

Small turnout of tax rebels

DANVILLE — Maybe most Contra Costa County taxpayers were too stunned by their recent tax bills to show up at Tuesday night's meeting of property tax rebels.

In any event, about 100 persons turned up at the San Ramon High School gym — a far cry from the 2,000 minimum predicted

The program, which included lectures about the evils of the American economy, its laws and property taxes, began with the pledge of allegiance and prayer.

"You can't have your cake and eat it too," warned Terry Jeffers of Danville.

Instead, Jeffers and other representatives of various taxpayer groups, including the John Birch Society, said tax reform is possible through an initiative to limit property taxes and the recall of free-spending politicians.

EELS FOR FOOD

In Europe and Asia eels have been sold for centuries. Specially designed ships with flooded hulls bring as much as 100,000 pounds of live eels to Europe's fish markets in a single trip.

A 1977 tax break is staring you in the eye!

Citizens offers you two tax-deferred retirement plans to reduce your '77 taxes. But hurry! Deadlines are approaching.

Now, you can keep more of the money you earn. Because your Best Financial Friend may save you hundreds of 1977 tax dollars today while you feather your nest for tomorrow.

Keogh Plan. If you're self-employed.

If you qualify, you can put a portion of your income into a Keogh Retirement Fund and pay no Federal tax on that amount. Interest earned is is tax-deferred every year, too, until withdrawal at retirement. Ask us for details.

Individual Retirement (IRA) Account. If you're not covered by an employer plan.

If you're not covered by an employer retirement plan, you could set aside a portion of your income into a Citizens IRA account. You pay no Federal or California tax on that amount and no tax on the annual interest until withdrawal at retirement.

You can even set up a Citizens IRA account with funds from a former employer's retirement plan. We'd be delighted to tell you all about it.

Citizens relieves a taxing situation with Income Tax Preparation Service.

Let Citizens save you time, headaches—and maybe hard-earned tax dollars. We'll have your 1977 Federal and California individual returns prepared by one of our trained tax personnel. We'll computer-check your returns to maximize deductions and accuracy. Our tax personnel are available year-round. And the cost is quite reasonable. We'll begin scheduling private appointments on November 28. Call or drop by for details.

Spray warn delay

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the spirit of Christmas, the Food and Drug Administration is giving the cosmetics industry a partial delay on a new requirement that aerosol spray cans with fluorocarbons carry warning labels.

Most newly shipped aerosol cans of deodorants, hair spray and other products must start carrying the fluorocarbon warning today.

But the cosmetics industry won a delay in the warning requirement for an estimated 43 million to 60 million cans of cosmetic fragrances and gift packs until Dec. 31, after the peak Christmas sale season for those items is over.

The industry convinced FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy that it would be costly and would disrupt sales to require the warning now on the fragrances and gift packs.

The warning requirement is part of a government plan to phase out use of fluorocarbon propellants by 1979 because of fears that the chemical is eroding the protective layer of ozone in the earth's atmosphere and may lead to more skin cancers.

The FDA action affects up to 500,000 million produced annually.

The Cosmetic, Toiletry and Fragrance Association, in a petition to the FDA last May, said it would cost between $3 million and $4 million to put new labels on the fragrances and gift packs, most of which already had been made.

House price jumps

Median housing prices in the state have increased 2 percent in a month to $63,394, reports the California Association of Realtors.

The increase is 30 percent more than the figure from a year ago, the CAR said.

Median prices were based on an August survey of boards of realtors throughout the state.

But despite the increase in the median price of housing, CAR president Jerome Blank, Albany, noted that housinp prices are leveling off.

"I believe the so-called 'Gold Rush' of California housing prices has begun to wane," he told a group of real estate salesmen in Bakersfield.

Earlier this year we experienced a price explosion resulting from a pent-up demand for housing which drove prices to an all-time high, but as new construction adds to the supply (of housing) we are beginning to see a leveling-off of prices throughout the state," Blank continued. Based on the statistics collected from the boards of realtors, Blank said the greatest frequency of sales, about 20 percent, occurred in housing selling for $90,000 and up. Houses selling for $50,000 to $60,000 accounted for the next-highest sales activity, or 17.5 percent.

Also, people continued to buy three bedroom houses. Such houses represented more than 50 percent of the resale market, the association study showed.

Drive to force another SR fluoridation vote

OAKLAND — The Safe Water Coalition, Inc., is heading a demonstration to launch a petition drive for a new fluoridation vote in the East Bay Municipal Utility District (EBMUD).

San Ramon is in the EBMUD water district.

The demonstration will be held tomorrow in Berkeley between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. at the corner of Shattuck Avenue and Bancroft Way, according to Suzanne Talmy Bell. She is public information officer for Safe Water Coalition, Inc. (SWC).

SWC members plan to collect 30,000 signatures by February, 1978. Bell stated the signatures will be presented to EBMUD as evidence of significant public interest in a new fluoridation election.

A spokesman for EBMUD's public information department said EBMUD's position on fluoridation was neutral.

"The East Bay Municipal Utility District board has taken the position that a move on the part of fluoridation opponents could end up with another election provided they obtained enough signatures and met other district criteria," the spokesman said.

He added other district board criteria included signatures of five per cent of registered voters in EBMUD, resolutions from city councils and/or board of supervisors, letters from the public and a public opinion poll.

He explained not all of these criteria have to be met but "at least a significant combination."

"After such standards are met," he continued, "the East Bay Municipal Utility District board would call a public hearing to see how local residents felt about the matter."

He reported it would cost $45,000 to get the issue on the primary ballot again. He said the issue had been voted down two other times but passed the third time around.

SWC stated the passing margin for fluoridation in 1974 was 50.5 to 49.5 per cent.

SWC contends studies have been published showing mutagenic damage from fluorides. They state this correlates artificial fluoridation with higher cancer death rates.

"Further substantiation of the danger of fluoride comes from the U.S. government," SWC reports. "In 1975, a Library of Congress report to the Senate Committee on Health and Environment included fluoride among water pollutants endangering public health. The report listed fluoride as among those chemicals which, if ingested in low repeated doses, increase cancer risk and genetic damage."

SWC maintains fluoride-contaminated fertilizers, airborne fluoride and fluoridated water account for boosting fluoride amounts found in foods.

SWC states, "Recent analyses of foods for fluoride content (measured in parts per million) indicated fluoride amounts have swelled from 16 to 160 times over a 25-year period. The amount of fluoride in most of these foods greatly exceeds FDA recommended levels."

They add further analyses of diets in major U.S. Cities indicate that people living in non-fluoridated communities already receive the upper recommended fluoride limits while residents of fluoridated communities receive toxic amounts.

Airborne fluoride is a quantity not normally included when measuring total fluoride intake, according to SWC. Yet, they continued, airborne fluoride contains the same fluoride as that found in fluoridated water.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture in 1974, (as quoted by SWC), "Airborne fluorides have caused more damage to domestic animals than any other air pollutant. A majority of cases were attributed to the ingestion of vegetation contaminated by fluoride-containing industrial emissions ... man is much more sensitive than domestic animals to fluoride intoxication."

Call for 9 SR parks

DANVILLE — A San Ramon Valley citizens' advisory committee has narrowed from 40 to 9 the number of potential park sites.

The parks — four large ones to serve the entire community and five smaller neighborbood ones — are to be built within the next 10 years if approved by the San Ramon Valley Planning Commission and the Contra Costa County Board of Supervisors.

The recommended sites are within the R-7 Parks District, which ranges from the southern boundary of Walnut Creek to Montevideo Road south of San Ramon, and between the eastern and western edges of development in the valley.

Tom Hansen, an administrator for R-7, said the committee's choices will permit a balanced budget and help meet local residents' demands for parks and recreation.

But he said the committee will have to watch valley growth closely and consider future requests. "The valley is changing so much we're going to have to say 'Let's take another look at this in six months, and again in another six months,'" agreed Dave Stegman, another R-7 administrator.

The community park sites include: Oak Hill Park, next to Monte Vista High School; Tibros Park in San Ramon; and in the Blackhawk Basin and Southwest Bishop Ranch areas.

Neighborhood park sites include a seven-acre parcel in the north Alamo area, a five-acre site near Alamo, Green Valley Park, Stone Valley Park, and Twin Creeks Park.

The committee will meet again Nov. 8 to review its tentative selections and seek public comment on them before forwarding their recommendations to the planning commissioners and supervisors.

Winners at band review

PLEASANTON — Armijo High School of Fairfield won the sweepstakes trophy for the Americana '77 Band Review parade held here Saturday.

In the field competition conducted Saturday night at Amador's Patterson Field, Live Oak High of Morgan Hill won the sweepstakes trophy with a judged score of 98.6. Live Oak was also the music sweepstakes winner.

The third annual parade and field competition sponsored by the Foothill High Band Boosters drew an audience of several thousand both for the parade and the show at Amador.

Bob Morgan of the Band Boosters was Americana '77 Band Review director.

In the parade section, Live Oak was the winner in Class A, Sunnyvale in Class B, Capuchino of San Bruno in Class C, and Hogan of Vallejo in Class D. Runnerup bands in each class were Merced, Lodi, Modesto and Half Moon Bay, respectively.

In the drum major categories, Santa Cruz's drum major was first in military followed by Cupertino and Modesto. In mace judging, Armijo's drum major was first followed by Sunnyvale, Capuchino and Ken Thorne of Foothill.

Sunnyvale took away a majority of the trophies in the other judged categories.

They placed first in tall flags and ID units and second in percussion units.

Capuchino was judged to have the best majorette team with Crestmoor of Daly City and Merced second and third.

Mountain View had the top solo twirlers with Lodi second and Lincoln of San Jose third.

In field competition, Independence of San Jose was first in Class I, Sunnyvale first in Class II and Highlands of Sacramento tops in Class III. Runnerups in each class were Armijo, Fairfield, and Piedmont Hills.

Ray Lindsey is the Armijo band director while Mike Rubino leads Live Oak. Host band director was Bob Moorefield of Foothill High.

Assisting Morgan with the review were Jim Bowe, assistant director; Jack Kendall, Don Williams, Bob Silva, Bill Cromwell, Sharon Paukert, Carol Tipler, Sue Cook, Dick Partida, Don Paukert, Ruth Cromwell, and Jim Drush.

5¼% CURRENT ANNUAL RATE + ½% CURRENT ANNUAL BONUS

Announcing World Savings' Bonus Account. It offers the best of both Worlds!

Passbook type advantages plus the interest of a certificate.

Do you want the higher interest of a certificate, but feel uncomfortable tying up your money—afraid you'll incur a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal?

Then our Bonus Account can give you the best of both worlds.

The minimum deposit to start your account is $1000 or more. Your account will earn interest at our current annual passbook rate of 5¼% (the highest rate any savings and loan can pay on insured passbook savings).

At the end of 90 days, World will add the bonus to your account at the current annual rate of ½%. That comes to a whopping 5¾% current annual rate after just 90 days!

"5¾% is great! But what if I withdraw funds?"

No problem. You collect your bonus at the end of each quarter. Any money you withdraw since you earned your last bonus still earns our current passbook rate. After your initial 90 day qualifying period, you never earn less than our passbook rate!

"So it goes in quarterly cycles. I can wait for my bonus, or withdraw in between."

Exactly. You'll always qualify for your bonus on funds you leave on deposit for a full calendar quarter. And you can withdraw your funds—without penalty—from the last 3 working days of each quarter (March, June, September, December) through the first 10 days of the following quarter.

There are only a couple of restrictions. Federal regulations prohibit payment of any interest on principal withdrawn within the first 90 day period. And while you can open your account for amounts of $1000 or more, additional deposits are not permitted.

If you want the advantages found in passbook savings, plus the higher interest of a certificate, then come to World Savings for a Bonus Account. And get the best of both worlds!
